

Ancient Stone Balls

The huge stone balls as inheritance of ancient times, is possible to find overall worldwide. There are few archeological sites in Bosnia and Hercegovina, in Serbia, Croatia, Costa Rica, Mexico, New Zeland, Australia, Turkey and Tunis among the others. The huge stone balls which weight amounts several hundred kilograms, are placed mostly underground, thus at still unknown locations, but occasionally, due to seismic or erosion activities, the stone balls appear at the ground surface, sometimes changing their originally location, rolling down the hills slopes in the valley.

Official science does not have explanation for appearance of the stone balls all over the world, although some suggestions spread around, that within the stone balls, in their core is hidden treasure, in form of a crystal ball or the like. These was the reason of destroying a numerous stone balls all over the world during a huge time period. Of course, nobody has found nothing valuable within, thus just a huge damage result out of these incomplete suggestions.

At the image above, there is an example of small size stone ball, cut through the middle. It is possible to notify existence of the hard granitic core, then some brighter gray, not so hard layer of the stone, enveloped by the harder layer on the surface of the stone ball.

This is a typical layers order of such, or of an similar stone balls. The similarities we could find in particular cases show that the density of the stone could differ from case to case, along with the matter of fact, how hard the particular layers are.

The reason why the layers are so ordered is simple to understand. It is a matter of fact, accordingly to natural science, that if we would have a sphere shaped object within the electromagnetic field, such as sunshine, or terrestrial electromagnetic field, the radiation to which the object is exposed, is going to be particularly reflected. Another part of radiation is going to be absorbed, and the third part of radiation is going to pass through the object, without to interact with mater of object at all.

The absorbed part of energy is going to be reflected from the focus of the spherical body, toward its surface, radially, uniform in all directions. Arriving the surface, one part of reflected energy is going to pass throughout of the body, since the other part of energy is going to be reflected, from the surface within back toward the core, and to contribute in the total amount of energy, being added to incoming energy amount. The reflection process appears multiple times, so the intensity within the core of ball, thus within its focus, is going to be magnified. In this way, oscillations of energy tuck place within the body of spherical shape, which frequency depends on size of body, or more precisely expressed on length of its radius. Thus, within the stone ball, the intensity of energy is going to oscillate, to increase and decrease alternatively. Within the core and along the crust, the intensity of energy is going to be maximal, which results in increased density of matter in these areas. Thus, the stone of stone ball is going to be harder within core and along the crust along the time.

We should remember on this place, about the results of the reports of the investigations of some members of Russian academy of science, who have investigated the behaviors of some objects of different materials, before and after sparing a certain period of time within the pyramidal buildings, constructed on this purpose. The conclusion was that the density of materials is going to increase, after the time spent within the pyramid in its focus, where the intensity of terrestrial field is highest. Even though, the diamonds density increased compared to the control objects of the same quality, which remained out of pyramid. The cause for this phenomenon lays in focused, magnified in intensity voltage pressure vortexes, underground field, which appears as a result of revolving the Earth on its axes, along with multiple reflection of an absorbed solar energy radiation, between Core and Crust, which happens in similar way, as in case of stone balls, described above.

In the matter of fact, we could in this case be witnesses of the expression of the fractal universal structure of the Universe, within the material of the stone ball, while the planet Earth is of the similar structure as the stone ball, located within an energy field, as described above. The Earth consists of the Core of high density, a magma layer which envelope the Core, and Crust, thus it approximately matches the constitutive layers of the stone ball, in example described above.

Along the sphere shaped forms, there are a numerous objects of different shapes and sizes, which accordingly to their shape have one or even many focus points, as it is a case for instance with Sphinx of Giza in Egypt, for which the word has been spread to hide within, at the place of hart the treasure. It could be the treasure of the same quality such as in case of stone balls, which have been demolished because of mismatching these, particularly true information, which source was of suspiciously intentions. As in many examples, we could recognize also on this place, presence of a demolishing template repeated along the history, caused by clever but destructive translators, whose resident is neither on Earth nor in Heavens, which intention is to mismatch the source of wisdom based on non-selfish love and share, the source which giving to humanity exactly these what is necessary to improve for matching a harmony with universe, to improve for abundance of life and pleasure. Unnecessary translators, are intentionally polluting a source of wisdom, originated in all Heavens, producing demolishing, and blaming humanity of being responsible for damage. In this particularly case, the parts of Artlandtis network have been destroyed, due to mismatched wrong evil leadership. This is a typical example how Love doesn't need any controller, translator, middleman, or general representative, who is always going to mismatch communication and to disturb love relationship.

The crystal core material of stone ball is in quality of obsidian or granite, depends on implemented stone, thus not very valuable to be extracted. The stone balls were not originally made of different materials but rather of some easy to reshape, soft materials, such as sandstone or even clay. During a long period of time, exposed to a terrestrial scalar field of high intensity, the density of material increased so much that the material transformed in its density, thus quality, changing from one kind into another. Of these reasons, the ceramic plates which cover in several layers the Bosnian pyramids, are nowadays harder then modern concrete, being long term exposed to the standing wave field of high intensity.

The real value of all of these objects is to serve as energy amplifiers, contributing as an elements of some larger resonant system, as energy magnifiers. The name, origin and purpose of these systems are well known nowadays. It is about the inheritance of Atlantis, ancient but advanced civilization, which members used to build the resonant landscape networks, spread all over the world, to realize very pleasant conditions for life species, allowing for their abundance and life in harmony. The real name of our ancestors was Art-Lands, who use to build artificial, artistic cultivated landscapes, and after whom remain numerous artifacts in form of huge monuments, some of them are so big, that they are hidden just in front of our faces. Exactly this was the case of the pyramidal complex in Bosnia near the city Visoko, placed close to the capitol of Bosnia and Hercegovina, Sarajevo. The most famous hero of ancient time, whose name and information about his heroic tasks has been delivered to us through the stories of Greece mythology, is Atlas, whose real name, has to be Art-Lands, accordingly to the decryption described above. There is another resonant mountain in this region, in Serbia which name nowadays is Rtanj, which original, old Latin name has been preserved in folks memory as Artan, which means artificial mountain. We could very easy reveal the original name of the Rtanj mountain to match Art-Land which has been distorted along a time.

Let us remember on this place, that the purpose of all of this monuments of resonant landscape network, are to amplify an existing terrestrial energy, using resonant power and focusing behaviors of objects of certain resonant shapes and properties. It results in focused energy beams, which shuts toward the heavens from the tops of the pyramids, hills and mountains, among the other resonant objects, with purpose to support the Firmaments, as we are informed due to sources such as Greece mythology and the stories about Atlas. Translated in our realm, using the terminology of natural science, this energy beam of scalar behavior, have a form of double helix, as expression of the scalar waves, of voltage pressure vortex within the electrical insulating environments, such as an atmosphere. These energy beams have the properties of the laser beams, although being of non visible spectrum of vibrations, yet have the properties of light columns which connecting the Core of the Earth with all the Heavens above us. Indeed, this is the way how the alternating component of the electrical energy is going to be conducted through the convenient electrical capacitor. In this particularly case, our capacitor represents a planet Earth itself, which ground is charged with free electrons as a free carrier of the electrical charge, along with ions of salty water in worlds oceans, thus represents one conductive plate of the sphere shaped global capacitor. The other conductive envelope of the sphere shaped global capacitor is represented by ionosphere, which is charged with exactly the same amount of electricity, as a ground, just of opposed sign. The carriers of electricity in ionosphere are ozone ions, therefore the origin of the name of an ionosphere. Whatever amount of electricity we are going to have at the ground around the globe, exactly the same amount of electricity, is going to be presented in ozone layer.

Knowing this simple fact, we could be aware of the main cause of ozone holes, appeared due to discharging a ground electricity. There are numerous devices, which sucks the free electrons into their circuits, and transform them into some another kind of energy. To repair the ozone layer, we just have to recharge the Crust with electricity, saving the life of numerous sensitive species worldwide.

The energy beams, which shutting towards the havens from the peaks of resonant landscapes, just contribute affirmative to the energy balance of the atmosphere, playing additional role as communication carrier signals, playing a similar role as the temples. This kind of energy is life supportive, thus our feeling within these energy field is exceptional extraordinary, causing even the self healing of some chronic illnesses in some particularly cases. Furthermore, the intensified standing wave energy, pull the ground water to flow upwards, allowing for the freshwater springs to outbreak at the higher altitudes. Flowing down the slopes of the hills and mountains, the freshwater is going to irrigate a wide area, and to supportive affect the vegetation to grow, thus a life in all abundance to spread.

Similar to a Sphinx, a numerous megaliths are going to be found as contributing objects within the resonant landscape complexes worldwide, with the role to amplify and transform the energy in its flow, to be focused and beamed toward the Havens, to support the Firmaments. Therefore, this is not recommended to remove the megalithic stones out of the tunnels network, within and underneath of the pyramids complexes, as well as around them, as it was the case until recently, since some of these resonant objects, essential for functionality of resonant landscape network, have been removed, resoled or transported to contribute to museums, or private collections worldwide.

Of the same reasons removing or damaging the huge stone balls is also not recommended. Some people, fascinated with the feeling they get in the near of the stone balls, used to relocate them in order to place them nearby to affect positively the environmental energy nearby, or even with an aim to resell them to collectionars, especially if there are some signs engraved on their surface. In doing so, the functionality of the resonant landscape could be demolished furthermore, as it already has happen on many places all over the world, due to several ice ages, which erosive effects have significantly damaged these huge monuments. Also the earthquakes along with another kinds of erosion, causes relocation and damage of some of these grandiose ancient objects. Spreading information and consciousness about their functionality, we would be able to significantly enlarge the security of existing objects worldwide.

This is the reason for not-keeping such essential knowledge secretly, neither for experts reasons, which serves to magnify a self-importance and selfish benefits of relatively small group of experts, nor for keeping the traditional tabus related to essential knowledge about the resonant landscape network, since the enemies who are intentionally damaging the life supporting resonant network, along the history, already know this secrets. Teaching as many people as possible, about the real functionality of resonant landscape network, would allow for much better keeping these very important inherited treasure of demolishing, based on missing knowledge about its importance and functionality.

Instead of to demolish them furthermore, we could repair the landscape network returning the lost functionality back, and even though spread the resonant landscape network around to transform the devastating landscape into welfare resorts, to magnify abundance of life and harmony of love with Whole Universe.
